

Dear Parents and Carers,

This week, some Owl Class children spent three days doing their Bikeability training. This course gives children the chance to master their cycling skills in an off-road environment, and then prepares them for cycling on the road. This was a fantastic opportunity for the children to learn some practical skills and some safety tips, but also to get outside and to practise doing something which can keep them healthy in the long term. It was brilliant to see how enthusiastic the children were to join in with this activity.

To complement the work they do in their PSHE lessons, all of the children joined a virtual workshop led by Severn Trent recently, looking at the water cycle, the history of water, what Severn Trent do and how they clean our water, and how we can all use water wisely and protect our planet.

Next Friday, we will end our half term with a Book Trust Pyjamarama Day (see below for more details).

Lastly, today you have been sent an email about our Sex and Relationships Education parent consultation. You are all welcome to be involved in this. Phase 1 involves listening to a presentation and looking over our policy and resources. These are now available for you to access. Phase 2 will be a questionnaire, which you will receive next week. Phase 3 will be a Zoom meeting where we can share more of our resources, and answer any questions you might have.

Book Trust Pyjamarama Day

Friday 28th May

Book Trust hold this event annually, to raise money to get all children reading, and provide every child with a bedtime story. Nationally, this event is taking place today, but we thought this would be a lovely way to end out half term. Children can come to school in their pyjamas (or any non-uniform) for a donation of £1 to Book Trust. They could bring along their favourite bedtime story too!
